FEDERAL ESTATE TAX: The "applicable exclusion amount" under current law, is equal to $15,000,000 (per person) for 2026 and indexed for inflation thereafter. An estate is subject to the federal estate tax to the extent that the total value of the assets comprising the estate exceeds the applicable exclusion amount. Each spouse holds an applicable exclusion amount; therefore, only estates exceeding $30,000,000 are subject to the federal estate tax at the death of the first spouse to die.

In 2026, the State of Idaho does not impose any type of estate or inheritance tax on the estate of a decedent or on the heirs of an estate.

If the value of all of your assets, including the death benefits payable under any life insurance policies that you own, exceeds $30,000,000 then we should discuss your options to minimize the effect of the federal estate tax on your estate.
